Mrs. Bradley seemed alternately happy and melancholy, sometimes singing a jolly Irish song, then lapsing into a fit of despondency, during which she would not speak to any one in the house. While despondent she would sit at the while despondent she would sit at the window and keep her even rivetted to one spot. She complained to Mrs. Butter several times that her daughter-in-law had ill-treated her, sometimes not giving her enough to eat.

Mrs. Bradley slept in the room nearest the dining-room. Mrs. Butler and the children slept in the front part of the house. At 6.30 o'clock this morning Mrs. Butter was awakened by her neighbor, Mrs. Barth, who had come into the fint by the fire-escape, and told her that Mrs. Bradley had slipped out of bed while the rest of the household were still asleep. She was seen by Mrs. Barthan. Morro, who lives at No. 19, leaping from the fire-escape without uttering a work.

Mrs. Butter said this morning that notwithstanding the fact that she offered Mrs. Bradley a permanent home, Mrs. Bradley felt lonely since the death of her daughter. She was heard to say on several occasions that she had nothing more to live for, and wished she could die.

The body was taken to the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street police station, and the son, who is employed in a downtown undertaking establishment, was notlined.

her home, 356 Brook avenue, this morning, and was killed.

For a year past Mrs. Rechstelmer occupied a flat on the third floor of the house with her husband, who is a salesman for the Delevan Refrigerator Works in East One Hundred and Thirty-eighth street. Last week her friend, Mrs. Rosalie Huerlinan, moved into the third floor flat in the next house, 498 Brook avenue. Between the two flat-houses there is an air shaft three feet wide. There is window in each flat looking into the a window in each flat looking into the shaft, and in order to avoid going down the stairs of one house and up the stairs of the other when they wanted to visit each other the women placed an ironing board across the air shaft and used it to walk over Early last night Mrs. Rechsteimer went to her dressmaker's, and at 10 o'clock, when she returned, she went to see Mrs. Huerlinan. The two examined the dress, and talked until after midnight. Then Mrs. Rechsteimer walked across the ironing board to her rooms.

When she got there she found that she had left her cape and hat schind, and she started to go back, but when she got to the centre of the froning heard it broke without even a warning creak, and the woman was pitched head first down the shaft. She was dead before her husband reached her. Her neck was broken.
